Do you think people in Egypt would be open to the idea of combining therapy with travel? Why or why not?

15 responses

No, mental health is still an issue. Not alot of people are aware of its importance

Maybe

Very much yes, however it might be a little hard for some girls and women in egypt as per their family rules

Sure, some people are open to the idea and its done in egypt. However, not everyone trusts it

I think they would be because changing location helps to get better and nature too

yep, because most of the Egyptians need those types of traveling because of their continuous stress

Yess

Yes , we need it and w couldn't find it

Yes

Yep

Yes, I think so

No, because most Egyptians think that therapy is for crazy people

Not really. Most people in Egypt are not really open to the idea of therapy alone yet combining travel and therapy would be harder

no no no egyptians do not accept the idea they need to therapy in any term but all egyptians travel yearly or every 6 months under term "change weather" not for therapy

What challenges do you think people face when searching for mental health travel programs?

Cost & Good agency I think

Confidentiality

Budget, availability, trustworthy therapists

Suitable locations

Good budget

credibility

Financial problems as prices might be so high

To find trusted place or company

Cost

Kind of mental health troubles

Having many things that make them can't concentrate on their life

Availability, as it is not common

High costs and not knowing what to trust

money

If you have anything to add...
